Further information

The cabin has the usual V settee arrangement converting to a large double berth.

There is currently no gas installation for the galley, but alternative cooking facilities can easily be added.

The separate heads compartment is fitted with a sea toilet.

Description

The Channel Island 22 was specifically designed and built to cope with the challenging sea conditions around the Islands. A task it fulfils admirably.

This one is nice, complete with beaching legs so you can dry out on the deserted beach when the tide goes out.
